Provide Inflationary Cushion For Postwar Period and Buy Equipment Now

When a War Bond is purchased and put away in a safety deposit box, it does more than just draw interest. Although they increase 25 per cent in value in ten years, they have a more immediate value.

Colonel Kenneth Cooper, a Toledo officer, on duty in the South Pacific with Ohio's 37th is an artilleryman. He knows what our fine guns, the 105 and the 155 howitzers and even the heavy mortars have done to the Japs. Those guns are literally blasting the road for our infantry to Tokyo. They are the products of our War Bonds.

"Men alone cannot win modern war," says Colonel Cooper. "If that were possible the courage and resourcefulness of the sons of Ohio and the other 47 states would be more than enough. Weapons and machines in unheated of amounts are needed. It is a struggle to the death here in the Pacific. By your purchase of War Bonds, you have helped supply us with the big guns we need in this vast fight. Your continued support through the purchase of War Bonds is essential to victory."

export purposes," he declared. He added the removal of uncertainties should make it possible for exporters to lay plans now "with assurance" that they could become effective after the war with Germany ends.

Churchill said that after Germany's defeat England hoped to be able to cut the lend-lease inflow from America by about half. "Lend-lease—that very great act—has stood us and our allies in good stead and we have never asked nor expected any assistance which is not strictly within its terms and provisions," the premier declared.

Arrangements already had been made in Washington, he said, as to "what the American administration feels it is proper and right for us to have in accordance with the terms" of the act.

Churchill reminded the house that lend-lease was an act which "was for the defense of the United States and is strictly limited to what is necessary for the most effective prosecution of the war by the United States and its Allies."

"The prolongation of the war into what will be for us the sixth and seventh year means that certain improvements are essential if our national economy is to be as fully effective as possible for the prosecution of the war," Churchill said.

"After the defeat of Germany some release of manpower to increase the supplies available for essential civilian consumption must follow in due course, and some improvements in the standards and variety of national diet."

CUT-BACK ALL SET

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(P)—The United States plans to halt lend-lease shipments of iron and steel to Britain January 1.

This means a drastic downward revision of the war aid program for 1945.

It was announced officially today in a statement summing up lengthy British-American lend-lease conferences just concluded here. They resulted in a $56,000,000 program for shipments to Britain during 1945—a cut of almost 50 per cent under comparable figures for this year.

Elimination of cost-free shipments of steel and some other "raw and semi-fabricated materials" to Britain is made possible by decreasing war demands on Britain's own steel industry, it

Front-line American echelons are being supplied partially by air.

In the newly-destroyed convoy were three large cargo transports, ranging from 8,000 to 3,000 tons, four troop transports of from 2,000 to 1,000 tons and three troop transports of 750 tons, in addition to the destroyers.

Bomb-carrying Kitt y hawks, Thunderbolts and Lightnings fought it for two days and a night, from Ormoc to the Camotes Sea, far westward.

The convoy was sighted late Tuesday afternoon west of Leyte, and some damage was inflicted. Fighters remained over it in relays throughout the night.

The job was finished the next morning.

Seven Japanese fighter planes, attempting to provide air cover, were shot down. The Leyte-based 49th fighter group boosted its record to 100 planes since reaching the Philippines October 27 and to 588 for the Pacific War.

JR. RED CROSS MEMBERSHIP IS AT 100 PER CENT

All 809 Students at WHS Are Enrolled Now, Report Says

Every one of the 809 students at Washington C. H. High School today are members of the Junior Red Cross, Stephen C. Brown, principal, reported today.

The 100 per cent membership goal was set by Mrs. Faye Mayo, who is the Jr. Red Cross sponsor for the high school. Membership fees totaled $56.97, although any amount from one cent on up entitled the student to membership.

Projects which are sponsored by the Junior Red Cross include making lap boards and scrap books, menu covers, watch holders and dozens of other items for use in military hospitals.

The Junior Red Cross program also is being carried out in the elementary schools in the city. Mrs. J. Earl Gidding is the Junior Red Cross chairman.

incendiaries on industrial targets in Tokyo, the 20th Air Force announced. Clouds prevented accurate observation of results.

Antiaircraft fire was reported light and wild, and there was no mention of interception. "None of our aircraft was lost from enemy action," the communique said.

A Japanese Imperial communique said 20 Superforts attacked in waves from midnight to 4:30 A. M. Thursday (Tokyo Time), striking from great heights at Tokyo and other industrial areas on the Nippon coast approximately 15 miles southwest of the capital. Incendiaries admittedly started some fires. The Japanese communique claimed "most of them" were put out immediately.

The raid brought a flood of indignation from the Tokyo radio, including a threat that any "Albino Ape" shot down after "blindly" bombing Tokyo would be "killed on the spot by the angry Japanese people."

Liberators and fighters heavily hammered Japanese islands along the B29's route from the Marianas to the Bonins to knock out bases from which Japanese have been raiding the Superfort's Saipan base and eliminate scouting patrols which might tip off Tokyo of a coming raid.

Fire-scarred Tokyo, its defenses admittedly penetrated twice in five hours Wednesday (U. S. Time) by Superfortresses, is getting a foretaste of a campaign "to destroy the heart and the nerve centers of Japan's war machine."

Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding general of the Army Air Forces, placed that interpretation last night at Kansas City on a gathering drive which has put bombers over Tokyo on three days within a week.

This air war on Japan has these ramifications: Premier Gen. Kuniaki Koiso held a cabinet meeting yesterday because—to quote Tokyo radio—"in due course various bottlenecks are expected to appear with many unexpected resulting effects."

The attacks were spread over "the metropolitan area and its vicinity, also a part of the Sunayen district." A domestic broadcast previously had told of simultaneous attacks on Shizuoka Prefecture below Tokyo.

Tokyo radio asserted the bombings were "indiscriminate" and caused little damage to "important establishments" but an air force spokesman at Washington emphasized indiscriminate bombing was not in the American plans.

U. S. GETS LOAN REQUESTS FROM SEVERAL COUNTRIES FOR POST-WAR PROGRAMS

Corcoran, former presidential intimate now in private law practice.

Whether this Biddle knockout, scored with White House help, ends the battle entirely is problematical. There remains some talk of a senate investigation.

Loans Wanted
Dean Acheson, assistant secretary of state, disclosed today that the United States already has received requests for loans from several foreign governments. He proposed expanding the credit facilities of the export-import bank to handle them.

Acheson also urged upon the trade sub-committee of the house postwar economic committee repeal of the Johnson Act which prohibits private lending to governments in default on American loans. He described the act as "a barrier to American participation in the rehabilitation of international trade."

Along with removal of the Johnson Act, the assistant secretary also proposed repeal of a provision in the export-import bank law which similar prohibits American government loans.

Acheson did not recommend a figure for the export-import bank expansion. The institution now has a credit maximum of $700,000,000 but a total available for new operations of only about $200,000,000. Officials have said its credit facilities would have to be increased to several billions if it were to function effectively in international trade.

Senate Republicans already are mapping plans for the 1946 and 1948 elections. They are working on a legislative program which they hope will net votes. The group probably will draw legislation on postwar taxes, social security, agriculture, foreign policy and labor to lay before the new congress.

Leon Henderson, former price administrator, is scheduled to handle economic affairs in that part of Germany to be controlled by Americans after war's end. He is due to leave for London next week.

Current point values for food probably will be extended indefinitely—the result of differences between OPA and the War Food Administration. The controversy may be settled in time for point revisions sometime next month.

YANKS CAPTURE MORE KEY TOWNS FROM NAZIS: GET SET-BACK IN ITALY

Almost 1,300 American heavy bombers, climaxing a 48-hour bomb offensive against German rail and oil targets, struck at four synthetic refineries in the Leipzig area and the rail yards at Saarbrücken.

More than 1,000 fighters escorted the heavies in the great daylight blow which equaled the mightiest single effort of the U. S. Eighth Air Force, and which was the sixth major air operation against the Reich within 36 hours.

Behind flamethrowers, tanks and tremendous artillery and air bombardments, Allied troops scored gains all along the 25-mile front on the Cologne plain in what the Germans said was one of the greatest battles of attrition in all history.

To the south the U. S. Third Army drove to within two miles of Saarbrücken in its invasion of the rich German Saar. Tanks cut to high ground dominating Merzig on the Saar River and rolled

CHARLES MAINS DIES THURSDAY

Was Prominent Business Man Of Greenfield

Charles Mains, 77, chairman of the board of directors of The American Pad and Textile Co. and long prominent in business, church and civic circles in Greenfield, died early Thursday in the Chillicothe Hospital, which he entered Wednesday afternoon. He had not been in good health for several days, and death was due to a heart ailment.

Mr. Mains became affiliated with the American Pad and Textile Co. in 1892, with Edward McClain, and was president and general manager of the company from July 1, 1913 until 1933, when he became chairman of the board. He had long been chairman of the official board of the First Presbyterian Church in Greenfield and was active in the Rotary Club, Elks, Masons and business men's organizations.

Mr. Mains, who had many friends in this community, is survived by two sons, Charles F. of Greenfield, and John, member of the War Production Board, Washington, D. C., one sister, Mrs. Hannah Irvine, of Greenfield, also survives.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at his late home in Greenfield, the hour not yet announced pending word from his son in Washington, D. C.

On the southern end of the long western front the American Seventh Army by-passed Haguenau, French rail center 31 miles southwest of Karlsruhe, and aimed directly for the latter city beyond the shelter of the Siegfried line, where the Germans have stores of fuel and ammunition. The French First Army and the American Seventh have wrested half the Alsatian plain from the Germans and were within 40 miles of a junction.

The rain-swollen Roer River in the north was made an even more formidable barrier to the Rhine-land as the Germans opened dam floodgates, widening the stream to nearly a mile at some points.

First Army men were fighting inside Merode, near Duren, after clearing Lamersdorf to the north and Grosshau to the south, and units were bursting into the open from the Hurtgen forest.

On the northern end of the front Canadians in another penetration of Germany were fighting in the De Wyler forest, six miles northwest of Kleve, northern terminus of the Siegfried line.

Lashing out in their strongest counterattacks in recent weeks, German troops in Italy recaptured three strongpoints from the Fifth Army southeast and southwest of Bologna.

The Allies were forced from Monte Castellaro, just below the Bologna-Rimini highway town of

CANADA'S TURMOIL OVER DRAFT GOES ON

Situation Continues Tense in Training Camps

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—(P)—The parliamentary phase of Canada's conscription crisis approached solution today, with Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King's government apparently saved from overthrow, but rebellious draftee troops resisting dispatch to the Western Front kept the nation tense.

Late last night youths left a Nationalist Party bloc populaire meeting in Montreal and smashed windows in the building of the newspaper "Le Canada," a French language publication which is official organ of Prime Minister King's Liberal party.

Other disturbances have occurred throughout Quebec.

Of grave immediate concern was the tense situation in half a dozen draftee camps in British Columbia.

Russian and Yugoslav Partisans thrust ahead 25 miles west of the Danube in southwest Hungary in a great new offensive threatening to outflank Budapest, drive straight into Austria and seal off all Nazi troops in the Balkans.

Marshal Feodor X. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian Army and Yugoslav Nationalists were driving north of the Danube's confluence with the Drava, after a breakthrough on a 93-mile wide front which extended on its northern flank to within 37 miles of Budapest. A Yugoslav communique, claiming an advance of up to 31 miles in the area, said Red army and Partisan troops were "pursuing the beaten Germans toward the west."

Berlin admitted further setbacks on the front northeast of Budapest, asserting that the Russians had broken into Eger, a town 60 miles northeast of the capital which guards a pass through the Matra mountains into central Slovakia.

NEW ENVOY TO ITALY IS NAMED BY FOR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(P)—Alexander C. Kirk of Illinois was nominated by President Roosevelt today to be American ambassador to Italy.

Kirk now is United States representative on the Allied Advisory Council for Italy. He was American Charge D'Affaires in Rome at the time Italy came into the war in June, 1940.

William Phillips was the last previous ambassador in Italy.

C. S. SANDERSON GETS CITATION

Distinguished Unit Badge Is Awarded Corporal

Mrs. Fairy Myrtle Sanderson, 621 Peabody Avenue, has just reason to be proud of her son, Cpl. Charles Elden Sanderson, now somewhere in France.

In a letter to Mrs. Sanderson, Lt. Col. Harold N. Holt says: "I am proud as I know you are to have your son, Elden, wear the Distinguished Unit Badge symbolic of our group's outstanding achievements against the enemy and I am confident that it is well earned and greatly deserved." Just what those "outstanding achievements" are, Mrs. Sanderson does not know.

Cpl. Sanderson has been overseas three years. He enlisted in the air corps November 8, 1940. He writes that when he is off duty, he cuts the boys' hair in his squadron.

His brother, Pvt. Elza H. Sanderson, is in the army stationed at a camp in Alabama.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The American Ninth Army's fresh drive against the German northern flank, along the flooded valley of the Roer River in the Rhineland, strengthens the belief that another big Allied push in this vital zone is imminent.

One suspects that this was the subject of the mysterious conference Tuesday night "somewhere in Belgium" between General Eisenhower and Field Marshal Montgomery, commanding the 21st army group in the north. They weren't playing checkers.

If the present push does develop into a full-fledged offensive, it likely will be calculated to turn the Nazi flank, compelling the Hitlerites to fall back from the Roer and accept battle in the open plain west of the Cologne-Düsseldorf sector of the Rhine. The grim purpose of these tactics is to force Nazi Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's armies up against the Rhine and annihilate them.

That's the main business of the Allied command right now—to kill or capture German soldiers. Hitler's fighting machine must be smashed. Territorial gains are secondary and will take care of themselves later. We mustn't forget that the developing battle of the Cologne plain probably is the decisive engagement.

Von Rundstedt himself has invited these tactics by electing to defend the Cologne plain to the last ditch. With this in view he has massed in this area all the troops he can rake up. He even has weakened his defense of Nazi-dom's great Saar industrial center on the southern end of the fighting front.

Why should the Nazi commander take such chances? Because the Ruhr manufacturing area, which lies behind the Rhine opposite the Allied northern flank, is vastly more important than the Saar. The latter has been one of Hitler's mainstays, but the Ruhr is the heart of Germany's industrial effort. Without it the Reich couldn't carry on.

Two developments may have opened the way for another offensive. British Prime Minister Churchill gave way the secret of one yesterday when he told the House of Commons that the great Belgian port of Antwerp actually is handling cargoes once more. Eisenhower is heavily dependent on this harbor for the vast stream of supplies he will need and he had to be sure it was ready for business before embarking on new adventures.

The other development lies in the fierce fighting which has been proceeding along the northern flank. Slowly but steadily the Allies—sometimes attacking in mud and water hip deep—have flung the Germans back from strong positions which blocked progress toward the Cologne plain. In particular the Allied advance towards the town of Linlich and Julich—where the Ninth Army is so heavily engaged today—has threatened the security of the German bridgehead across the Maas River, between Roermond and Venlo to the north, and so has prepared the way for a larger advance. (Use those maps, please).

Don't the Germans know what's cooking? Of course they do. Their commentators for days have been predicting an offensive on this northern flank. The fact that the Nazis have opened dam flood-gates on the Roer to block the Ninth Army clearly indicates that they believe a fresh crisis is close.

When the big show develops it

JOHN H. VARNEY NOW SERGEANT

Think Report Brother Was Wounded Is Belated

From the 25th Infantry division of the Southwest Pacific comes the report that John H. Varney, squad leader with the 161st Infantry regiment has been promoted from corporal to sergeant.

At the same time the U. S. Navy has reported Pfc. Orley Varney, Jr., brother of Sgt. John Varney and member of the Marine Corps reserve, was wounded.

However, inasmuch as his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orley Varney, Sr., of North Street, this city, were notified three or four months ago that their son was wounded, the present report is regarded as being a belated naval report of him being wounded at that time, and not a new wound.

Sgt. John H. Varney is the husband of the former Virginia MacBrowder, North North Street, and he has just joined the 25th division which slugged it out with the Japs on Guadalcanal and New Georgia in the Solomon Islands.

Entering the army the day after the Japs struck Pearl Harbor, Sgt. Varney was a rifle expert and platoon instructor in a cadre company at Camp Roberts, California. When firing for record, he scored a total of 201 points of a possible 210.

In a recent decathlon held by his regiment, Sgt. Varney was a member of his battalion's team which won the meet.

A 1937 graduate of Washington C. H. High School, Varney was employed by the Coffman Stair Co.

will produce some of the toughest fighting of the war. It can't be otherwise for bound up in it are (1) the very existence of Von Rundstedt's armies, and (2) the ability of the Reich to continue resistance. There is, of course, now no question of a successful outcome for the Allies, but the rate of progress will depend heavily on the weather and the condition of the water-logged terrain. We shall do well to recognize that the going will be hard.

MICE ATE HIS TIRES, INDIANA FARMER SAYS; MANUFACTURER SCOFFS

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(AP)—William B. Gray, co-owner of a farm near Noblesville, Ind., says field mice had gnawed away on his tractor's pneumatic tires and he has his own theory why the mice feasted on the synthetic rubber.

Gray, asking the Office of Price Administration for permission to buy two new tires, told the OPA field mice gnawed away on the rubber, leaving the fabric exposed. The tires cost about $90 each, he said.

"It may be," he told the OPA, "the mice were lured by the alcohol used in making synthetic rubber. Or it may be the sugar used in making alcohol."

Regional Administrator Rae E. Walters said Gray wouldn't have any difficulty getting replacements if inspection showed the ones he has are damaged beyond repair.

In Louisville, synthetic rubber manufacturers scoffed at Gray's complaint. "There is no alcohol in synthetic rubber tires," asserted a plant director. "The alcohol is converted into Butadiene and the Butadiene into rubber. There is nothing that would cause rodents to gnaw on the product anymore than they would on natural rubber."

POET'S CORNER

There is a little tot Who lives across the way, Who always comes to see me A number of times a day.

She rings my electric door-bell And stands expectant near 'Till "Aunt Corda" comes to greet her. And says, "Come in my little dear!"

We romp and play together And share good things to eat; She wants to help me do my work So quick with hands and feet.

How I would miss this little tot If she failed to come to me. The days would seem much longer And much joy depart from me.

Argentine Militarism

Edelmiro Farrell is the president of Argentina, but the strong man of the group of quarreling "colonels" who make up the present government is Vice President Juan Peron. People who sit back comfortably believing that the regime is not totalitarian, because no one man heads it, might do well to consider some of the moves recently made by Peron. For example, the new "organic law of the army," which requires all Argentine citizens to prepare themselves for military defense, beginning at the age of 12. From 12 to 20 there is "pre-conscription training." At 20, two years of conscription begin. After this, all males will be subject to post-conscription duties to the age of 50. Girls and women also begin at 12 their training for auxiliary services.

This is quite different from the military service proposed for Americans. In our one year, coming probably somewhere between 18 and 24, our young people will learn many things of value, besides getting a basic military or naval training. Physical defects will be discovered and attended to, with consequent benefit. The advantages of outdoor training and teamwork are expected to stay with the student through life, without impairing him for civilian pursuits.

But concentrating life and education on military matters beginning at the age of 12 does not augur well for the development of a peaceful nation.

Waiting To Go!

A new industry has matured in this war, with a future so fantastically unlimited that its full significance can scarcely be grasped. That industry is aviation, and particularly commercial air transport.

The people of the United States who would almost rather travel than eat, even in normal times, are now, after several years of war-enforced confinement, nearly bursting with anxiety to start moving. As soon as conditions permit, they will hit the road for far away places on everything that will carry them, from bicycles to airplanes.

The airplane ranks high in the public imagination as a means of seeing remote corners of the world. And no wonder! Approximately 200,000 route miles have been flown in the service of the nation by passenger and cargo planes operated by personnel of the Air Transport Command and the Naval Air Transport service. No lonely Pacific islet, no sweat-drenched African landing strip, no ragged Himalayan peak, has failed to see, in ever increasing numbers, the transports carrying men and supplies from America to every quarter of the globe. These operations have been carried on against a background of airline experience and with the help of the airline pilots. When the war is over, worldwide military supply lines will become worldwide airways for the passengers and cargoes of peace.

Planes are on drawing boards or in the process of construction that should forever silence the pessimists who claim that the age of adventure and new frontiers is

Treasure in Waste

Vitamin E, obtainable heretofore only from wheat germ oil or by synthetic process, is now taken from industrial wastage, according to Dr. Kenneth C. D. Hickman, a Cincinnati physicist. For years great quantities of this vitamin which adds to the length of life have been flowing unchecked into sewers and rivers. Now there is plenty of it available.

This is a new variation of an old story, the discovery that unconsidered waste products contained materials well worth reclaiming. It brings nearer to realization the story of the packing house which utilized every part of the pig except the squeal. Modern science might use the squeal for an automobile horn.

Military Movies

If Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton, perhaps a practice originated on America's football fields may be helping to win this war. For just as a coach looks at the movies of last Saturday's game to study and avoid mistakes in the next one, so our General Staff studies combat films for what they can teach in the conduct of war.

In western Europe alone there are 200 combat photographers who shoot an average of 60,000 feet of film a week. This is rushed to London for developing, then flown to Washington. Thus for the first time in the history of war, the generals and admirals who plan the broad strategy of battle may share the field commander's view of its tactical application.

Conceivably this is saving lives and speeding victory. So the next time we growl at spending money for some mine-run Hollywood product, we might temper our ire with the thought that the technical refinements of movie-making are making a real contribution toward winning the war.

Some Recent Ideas on Infant Feeding

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

IN A RECENT article on modern ideas in infant feeding I wrote that one fundamental principle has never changed, which is that the very best food for newborn infants is mother's milk, and that

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

If a baby can get a start in life of only one or two months of breast feeding it will guarantee a minimum of digestive and nutritional trouble in the future.

I am encouraged to repeat this here because with the enormous upsurging in our crop of new babies, campaigns are being conducted all over the country to persuade mothers to nurse their babies and to teach them how to do it in the most effective way. This is done by breast feeding demonstrations to young mothers. The campaign was suggested and started by Julius P. Sedgwick, but its success is largely due to the enthusiastic work of Dr. Frank Howard Richardson, formerly consultant of the division of Child Hygiene, State Department of Health, New York, and now in North Carolina.

Human Lactation

The studies made by the various groups who have been doing this work have resulted, as Dr. Richardson pointed out, in giving us first hand knowledge about human lactation instead of as hitherto by analogy with the time-honored milk producing mammal which has so far supplied most of our scientific data regarding milk production.

In other words, we are learning that a woman isn't exactly like a cow and shouldn't be treated as such.

Breast feeding with mother's milk has gone out of fashion for several reasons. One was that the young mother of our hasty-burly age thought it tied her down too much and wasn't necessary. Another was that the idea got around that the modern girl couldn't give enough milk—the breasts went dry in a few weeks after birth. This particular phenomenon when it occurred was almost always due to ignorance and lack of proper instruction on the part of the medical profession.

Still another reason is the idea which has got about that special formulae or infant's foods are scientifically better adapted to an infant than mother's milk. This is another misconception due to bad education.

Fretful Infant

It is often supposed that an infant which is fretful or crying after a feeding is having a colic. More often it is because it is unsatisfied and hungry. The reason the breasts dry up a few weeks after nursing has begun is in nine out of ten cases because the baby has not been allowed to empty them completely. Perhaps the baby is too weak, or perhaps satisfied before complete emptying. But the nursing mother should learn to strip the breasts by manual expression after each feeding until they are empty. A breast functions in proportion to the demands made on it. When it is completely emptied at each feeding it increases its supply with the demands of the growing infant.

There are cases that are on record in the breast feeding demonstration clinics of breasts that have gone almost completely dry at the end of six weeks, when stripping and manual expression were instituted came back so that in 30 days each breast was producing nearly thirty ounces of milk in 24 hours.

The timing of breast feedings can be spaced so the objection about tying the mother down does not arise. There is no reason why the baby has to be fed in the middle of the evening—say, 10 p. m. The night feeding can be done just as well at 11 p. m. or midnight. An adequate feeding schedule is 6 a. m., 10 a. m., 2 p. m., 6 p. m. and midnight.

He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty.

I will say of the Lord, He is my refuge and my fortress: my God; in him I will trust.
Surely he shall deliver thee from the snare of the fowler, and from the noisome pestilence.

Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day:
Nor for the pestilence that walketh in darkness; nor for the destruction that wasteth at noonday.

CHAPTER FORTY

"When did you last open the cupboard?"

There was a short pause. Then Alexis said she didn't know. "Perhaps several days ago. I really can't remember. Except that if the checks had been there when I last looked, I would have seen them."

"Do you know Frederic Miller?" asked Nugent pointblank.

"No," replied Alexis.

And they could get nothing else out of her. Anybody in the house, she said, could have known of the little cupboard. She gave me a long, bright look when she was told that I had found the checks and there was something in her look that actually started a kind of chill up my back.

Anybody could have put the checks there, just as anybody—again she looked at me fixedly and brightly—could have taken them. Conrad's desk was never locked.

When questioned about Conrad's former sympathy for the German cause she said that, of course, everyone knew where his sympathies had lain.

"Had he ever been interested in the various Bund organizations?" asked Nugent.

"I don't know."

"Do you remember the clipping you said you took from his desk? At the time you said you saw the box of medicine."

"Yes. Certainly."

"Did you read it?"

"Yes. I read it aloud. He asked me."

"Can you remember what it was about?"

"I told you. It concerned the arrest of some members of the Bund."

"Their names were given, I suppose."

"No. I believe not. I really don't remember. So much has happened since then."

"What did you do with it?"

"I don't know. My husband asked me to read it and I did. I believe I gave it to him. Or perhaps I put it on the table."

"Who was in the room at the time?"

Her slender black eyebrows drew together. "I'm not sure that I remember that, exactly. Either. My husband and I, of course. It was immediately after dinner. Mrs. Chivry was there. I suppose my brother and Peter Huber were there, too."

"Mrs. Brent, try to remember this. Was it your impression that anyone in the room had a special interest in hearing the clipping read?"

"I could read nothing in her beautiful, delicate face. She said very promptly, 'No one but my husband. And I've no idea why he was interested.'"

Nugent waited a moment and then said directly, "What about your brother?"

"My brother?" asked Alexis. "But really..." Her voice was cool and polite; her eyebrows arched in delicate question. "But really, Lieutenant, my brother had nothing to do with the arrest of any members of any Bund. He has never had any sympathy for Germany."

"He's registered for the draft?"

"Certainly. He can tell you."

"You and your brother lived abroad for some time, didn't you?"

"When we were children, yes."

"What of Peter Huber?"

Craig started to speak, but Alexis replied, "You know everything I know of him. Lieutenant. He's been here about a month. He's waiting for his call to the army."

"Let me see. According to his story he went to school in California."

"I believe so," answered Alexis. "Didn't you check his statements? I understood that was part of your job."

"You are quite right," said Nugent, untruffled. "I'm afraid I've forgotten his home. I mean the name of the town. What was it, Brent?"

"Peter's home!" said Craig. "I don't know. I know where he went to school. I think he lived somewhere near Monterey."

"Do you remember his most recent address?" asked Nugent.

"I think he said Hollywood. He was trying to get a job in the movies. I suppose a Hollywood address is the logical surmise in that case. Besides that's where he knew Bill Sheridan."

"Bill Sheridan?" exclaimed Nugent. "Who's he?"

"Fellow. Pete knows. And I know. Went to school with Pete; that is, university. Bill was in my class at prep school. Yes, I'm sure. Pete came from Hollywood here."

"Is that your impression, Mrs. Brent?"

"Really," parried Alexis. "If you've forgotten, I'd suggest you're asking him. Peter is nothing to me, you know. I never saw him before Conrad met him at the inn, in the village, and brought him here."

"That was about a month ago."

"Yes," said Alexis.

Nugent got out a little black notebook and turned a few pages. "Ah," he said. "You were both right. It was a Hollywood address he gave us. I was sure somehow, in spite of his quiet voice that he had remembered all along and thus had only been testing Craig and Alexis—but testing them for what (aside from their knowledge of Peter and of Nicky) I didn't know. He said, 'Yes, of course, how could I have forgotten!'"

"And Nicky?" he turned another leaf. "Nicholas Senour, brother-in-law to deceased M-m-m. Apartment on East Fifty-sixth street in New York. Lives mainly at Brent home. Traveled extensively in Europe as a child; last trip made in..."

He squinted hard at the writing, although from where I stood it looked perfectly neat and legible and said, "Can't make this out. When was his last trip abroad. Mrs. Brent, and where did he go?"

"It was in 1937," said Alexis, "and he went to Italy."

"I don't seem to have his occupation down here either. What does he do for a living?"

Alexis bit her full underlip. "He doesn't do anything."

"Oh. Inherited money, I presume. You and your brother."

She hesitated and then said, "A little. Not much."

"I see." He closed the book suddenly and leaned forward. "Mrs. Brent, what about those checks made out to your brother? Were they for any specific service?"

Alexis waited a second, her eyes shadowed again by her dark eyelashes, then she looked up. "Lieutenant, that has nothing to do with the murder of Dr. Chivry. Nicky needed some money, of course; he's young and has no source of income. My husband knew that it would please me if he saw to it that Nicky had a little money, that's all."

"And Nicky lives here, mainly?"

"Yes. Since that we've shared his apartment in New York."

"So you know most of his friends?"

"Why, I—yes, I should think so."

"Did he know Peter Huber?"

"No. Of course not. None of us knew him."

"Were any of your friends at all interested in politics?"

"Why, I—really, I don't remember. There was a tinge of uncertainty in her voice, yet it was nothing. It seemed exactly significant. It was more as if she could not discover the trend of Nugent's questions."

If so, she was soon enlightened however. For Nugent leaned forward, his lean face suddenly as sharp as a hatchet. "Who is Frederic Miller?" he asked abruptly.

"I don't know," said Alexis. "I don't have the faintest idea."

In the end, Nugent seemed to accept her denial. He said, "Try to think back, Mrs. Brent; try to remember. And added, 'You told me that you had not seen Dr. Cable since last night when you saw her going from this room to her own room. You are sure you didn't see her at any later time?'"

"Perfectly sure."

"You don't know where she is?"

"Certainly not. She wouldn't have taken me into her confidence before she escaped, I assure you."

"Did you send her a message of any sort?"

"No," said Alexis, and rose. "If that is all, Lieutenant..."

He nodded. "Send Mrs. Chivry in here, will you please?"

Alexis went away rather abruptly. She looked a little shaken, it seemed to me, but by no means ready to break down and tell all. If, that is, there was anything for her to tell.

Maud must have been in the hall, for Alexis had scarcely gone when she appeared in the doorway and entered.

Britain To Race U.S. for Auto Market

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

LONDON—Three months after V-Day automobiles will be rolling off production lines of British factories by the thousands, but their prices will be almost double the prewar cost, according to the best estimate of England's big manufacturers.

Prewar models only will be produced for two or three years before new designs can be drawn and plants retooled for turning out genuine postwar cars. Meanwhile, England's customers will pay an estimated $1,200 for virtually the same average type machine that had a price tag of $800 in 1939.

Twenty percent of the total prewar production of British cars was exported and the government intends to keep its world market by earmarking a fixed percentage of production for outside trade.

With this plan, England expects to offer immediate competition to the U. S. industry, which British car builders foresee as bidding for domination of the world's private auto market.

One industrialist said, "We are aware America, capable of quickly swinging over to production in a larger scale than Britain can hope for, can get the jump on postwar output of newly-designed cars and use it effectively to bid for overseas trade—and still meet demands of her own public."

"Britain must get 140 million dollars worth of exports to redress the adverse overseas trade balance arising by the disappearance of investments she held before the war," said Sir Miles Thomas, chairman of the Public Relations committee of the British Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders. "The government desires to devote a fixed percentage of auto production to export trade for a period of two to three years after the war."

If England limits home sales to boost exports and if American interests can undersell British models by at least $400, the country's home market would be open for invasion by the U. S. industrialists said.

"This will be especially true," Sir Miles predicted, "if the jeep makes America so small-conscious that there will be a heavy demand for production of smaller models for public use."

In the past, the larger size of the greater fuel consumption of American cars undoubtedly limited their sales in England. They were not fitted for this country's facilities of pocket-books.

"Another limitation in sales here was a government tax equal to one-third the domestic price of American cars. This tax was dropped during the war and there is no assurance it will be replaced. Even if it is, it will not prove much of a barrier."

The genuine postwar English car, he said, will be "streamlined" rather than streamlined and will embody many features of springing, suspension, road-holding and easier maintenance learned in the building of armored vehicles, tanks and trucks during the war.

A postwar car also will be built especially for mother and her children. The designer plans to make the backseat of the car as safe as a nursery, with door handles sunk so that small fingers and sleeves will not catch on them. The doors can be locked from the driver's position.

A "shopping parcel" compartment will be introduced so mother can put in her packages without stepping out into the road.

"Extras" will include kitchen equipment so baby's food can be heated on long journeys.

"We may have the conveniences," said Sir Miles, "but I am afraid we never will be able to approach America's ideal of looks in our models."

NAZIS SHOOTING MASSES TO KEEP THEM ON JOBS

BERN, Nov. 30—(AP)—A dispatch today in the Schaffhausen Arbeiter Zeitung, quoting persons arriving from Germany, declared the Nazis are resorting to mass shootings in an attempt to compel workers to stay on the job in armament factories.

The dispatch declared 300 workers were summarily shot on Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler's orders when a strike broke out at Mannheim recently after an Allied air attack.

The U. S. national Capitol was erected with slave labor.

Rev. Abernethy Guest Speaker at Mothers' Circle

Mrs. Richard R. Willis was a gracious hostess to thirty members of the Mothers' Circle at the organization's meeting Wednesday night.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. Darrell Thornton presided over the business session. She introduced three new members, Mrs. Clarence G. Hayes, Mrs. Wayne Woodyard and Mrs. George Pensyl, at the beginning of the meeting. After introducing the three women, Mrs. Thornton read the "Parents' Prayer."

Roll call was answered by each member giving the names and ages of her children. Two new members were voted into the club after the secretary and treasurer's reports were made. It was voted that the organization buy a bond in the Sixth War Loan Drive.

A new project of the club will be selling hand lotion, which Mrs. N. M. Reiff ordered. Mrs. Carroll Halliday is distributing the lotion for sale and members may contact her to receive bottles for selling.

Five Christmas baskets will be distributed to needy families by the Mothers' Circle this year, it was decided. Toys, dolls and food are needed to help fill the baskets. The committee in charge is Mrs. Robert Dunton, Mrs. Dewey Sheidler, Mrs. John O'Connor and Mrs. R. D. Beard.

The annual children's Christmas party sponsored by the Mothers' Circle is scheduled for December 18 at two-thirty o'clock in the Dayton Power and Light clubroom. A ten cent gift exchange for the children is planned. Mrs. George Trimmer, Mrs. Walter Beatty, Mrs. Harold McCord and Mrs. Fred Rost are the committee in charge of the party.

Rev. John K. Abernethy, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, was the guest speaker for the evening. In expanding his subject, "Child and Religion," Rev. Abernethy pointed out that the home is the foundation of the child's religious education and that the responsibility for this foundation falls on the parents' shoulders. He displayed several books on religious subjects written especially for children.

After the meeting was adjourned, the hostess invited the members to the beautifully appointed dining table where tea, salad and wafers were served. Mrs. G. E. Bidwell poured at the table, which was centered with a modernistic arrangement of chrysanthemum blossoms floating in a water garden with three candles at one side.

The hostess committee was Mrs. Marilyn Riley, Mrs. Charles Reinke, Mrs. Grove Davis, Mrs. Otis B. Core and Mrs. R. T. Andrews.

Dr. Karl Murphy Will Be Speaker

Dr. Karl Murphy, head of the Veterans' Hospital in Chillicothe, will be the guest speaker at the DAR meeting Monday afternoon at the home of Miss Fannie McLean, 517 East Market Street.

Mrs. E. L. Morgan, regent of the Washington C. H. DAR chapter, said she felt the chapter is very fortunate in securing Dr. Murphy as a speaker. His subject will be "Occupational Therapy."

Another interesting feature of the program will be an exhibit of articles of handicraft made by disabled servicemen at Ellis Island, New York. Miss Emma B. Jackson, chairman of the Ellis Island Committee, is in charge of the exhibition.

Assisting hostesses at the meeting, which will begin at two-thirty o'clock, will be Mrs. Chester James, Mrs. Oscar Beatty, Mrs. A. B. Clifton, Mrs. Marion Rife, Mrs. W. E. Baughn, Mrs. Walter McCoy, Miss Ethel Pine, Miss Corda McCafferty, Miss Fannie Browning and Mrs. Leland Stevens.

L. M. TOWNSEND NOW ON JOB AS REVENUE AGENT

Located in Room One on Second Floor Masonic Temple Building

Lloyd M. Townsend, new deputy collector of internal revenue for Fayette County, is now on duty at his office in room one, Masonic Temple building, and his office will be open during usual business hours.

Townsend, native of Clinton County, has been stationed in the Dayton office for sometime, and was moved to Fayette County to succeed S. W. Fennig, who resigned to take up other work.

With Townsend this week is Dan A. Curran, supervising deputy collector for five counties in this district, including Fayette, Clinton, Highland, Clermont and Brown. Curran will be here from time to time, dividing his attention between the five counties in his district.

Townsend calls attention of farmers to the fact that those to file complete returns may do so between January 1 and January 15, instead of filing partial returns by December 15.

He also said that all persons who paid an income tax last year will soon receive blanks from the central office at Cincinnati, with instructions regarding the filing of same.

CIGARETS IN CAPITAL AS SHORTAGE PROBED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(P)—A restaurant cigar stand in the capitol looked like a bargain basement counter today when word spread that a shipment of cigars had arrived.

The smokers were received a few minutes before the House Agriculture committee opened hearings on the nationwide shortage. Among those who crowded around the stand was House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.).

ONE EIGHTH TRAFFIC DEATHS IN CALIFORNIA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(P)—Nearly one in eight of the 23,826 deaths from motor vehicle accidents last year occurred in California, the Census Bureau reported today.

That state had 2,746 deaths. New York was second with 1,774, Pennsylvania 1,468 and Ohio 1,388.

With a Buckeye In Congress...

By CLARENCE J. BROWN
Member of Congress, 7th Ohio District

From every section of the nation the report the 6th War Loan Bond Drive is going over big. Every thinking American knows the buying of these bonds will bring victory earlier and our boys back home quicker. They also know war bonds are a safe investment, and are just as good as United States currency, or even better, for they can be converted into currency at any time, while earning interest as long as they are held. So remember—Better Buy a Bigger Bond.

All Federal employees in Washington, other than those in the postal service, were required to remain on their jobs Thanksgiving Day. Leave could not even be granted for working wives to quit an hour early to prepare the Thanksgiving dinner. Absence from their posts of duty would have seriously interfered with the war effort, they were told. Yet on Friday, November 10th, when President Roosevelt returned from Hyde Park, following his triumph at the polls, all government workers were given permission to leave their work and join in welcoming the conquering hero home as he rode slowly down Pennsylvania Avenue, accompanied by Vice President Wallace and Vice President-elect Truman.

In June of 1943 the House voted to kill the Federal crop insurance program because it had proven costly and unworkable. Last week the same House, completely reversing itself, enacted a new crop insurance law, under which wheat, cotton and flax crops will immediately become insurable against almost every hazard with about every other farm product to be included later. A limitation restricting cost of administration to not more than twenty-five percent of the total premiums received was written into the law. The change legislation in the House, and accepted before it finally becomes law.

Leon Henderson, staunch New Dealer and former stormy petrel head of the Office of Price Administration, is said to be scheduled for early appointment as Economic Advisor to General Dwight Eisenhower in preparation for being designated to run the civilian and economic affairs of the United States zone in Occupied Germany, once the Nazis are defeated. Somehow or other the idea appeals to us as a good one—for certainly Leon would be in his element, and the Germans deserve the punishment.

Keep your eye on the government disposal of surplus war goods. There have already been quite a number of very peculiar transactions in connection with the disposal of certain government property, and many observers in Washington believe a real national scandal may develop in this particular field unless corrective steps are soon taken.

In the last two weeks there has been a great deal of talk in high places regarding the shortage of munitions, especially of small arms ammunition and heavy shells, for use on the Western Front. Both General Eisenhower and President Roosevelt have mentioned the dangerous shortage which exists, and the need for increased production. There has been some inclination to blame American industry for the present situation. The truth of the matter is quite a number of ordnance plants were ordered closed down last summer and others to reduce their working schedules to one shift per day. We wonder who issued such orders? Those who take credit for the victories must also accept responsibility for the mistakes which are made in the war planning.

Complete official election returns from the 7th District gave Dewey 83,749; Roosevelt 59,747; Stewart 84,645; Lausche 56,775; Taft 80,942; Pickrel 57,289;

Brown 84,770; Cashion 52,403. Your humble servant is very grateful for the fine vote given him.

'BETTER THAN AVERAGE'
MARIETTA, Nov. 30.—(P)—An oil well drilled on an abandoned farm in nearby Ludlow Township is "better than average," and produced 300 barrels in one day, said Dean D. Copeland of Butler, Pa., representative of the Ludlow Oil and Gas Company.

Ohio Congressman Foresees Veterans' Political Power

CLEVELAND, Nov. 30.—(P)—World War II veterans will represent the largest single potential bloc of voters that the nation has ever known, Congressman Harry P. Jeffrey of Dayton, declared today in an address before the Ohio Chamber of Commerce.

Speaking before the organization's Social Security Forum, Congressman Jeffrey, a member of the House Veterans committee, asserted: "Whether the group will fall apart or act as an appreciable unit, only the future can foretell."

The legislator discussed the possibility of an adjusted compensation or a bonus bill for the veterans, as supplementary legislation to the G. I. Bill of Rights Act. He said such a measure is being considered but termed its passage in the near future unlikely because members of Congress believe the veterans themselves should participate in the determination of its provisions.

A passerby noticed a friend in line.

"Films or cigarettes?" he inquired.

"Haven't the slightest idea," returned the other, "but it must be something scarce, so I'm getting it."

Jeffersonville News

Mrs. Belle Thompson

P-TA

The November meeting of the P-TA was held at the school house on Tuesday evening. The short business session was presided over by Mrs. Juanita Bartlett, chairman of the program committee. The meeting opened with a salute and pledge of allegiance to the flag, followed by a Thanksgiving prayer. The project committee with Lester Allen as chairman, gave a report which was adopted by the society. They plan to buy and repair playground equipment for the grade school. The president, Mrs. Roxie Morgan sent in her resignation, which was accepted and Martin Campbell was elected to fill the chair for the remainder of the year.

At this November meeting, as a part of the program planned by the parents, two special feature numbers were given, a solo, "The White Cliffs of Dover," by Vernon Mason and a reading by Mrs. Albert Vannorsdall. Harry Clark acted as master of ceremony for the round table discussion which was held in the study hall while the children were entertained by a movie. The topic for discussion was health, recreation and character development and introduced by Juanita Bartlett, Martin Campbell and Dorthea Agle.

Refreshments were served in the school cafeteria in the grade building.

The next meeting will be a Christmas program by the school children, December 19.

Booth Festival

Members of the Youth Fellowship of the Methodist Church motored to Sabina last Friday evening for the annual Wilmington District Booth Festival for the children of the Methodist Children's Home at Worthington. There was a jitters supper at four o'clock and a program in charge of Rev. Carl Pierson of Jamestown at eight o'clock. Part of the program was for each church to have a stunt. Each church displayed their contribution in a booth and ours was dressed up by our two bushel of apples surrounded by various kinds and colors of fruits. Our contributions were much larger than last year, amounting to $119.63 which gave us a 100 percent participation in the Booth Festival.

Those making the trip were Rev. and Mrs. E. R. Rector, Mrs. Wayne Vannorsdall, the Misses Ruth Elinor Wiseman, Fern E. Wilt, Anna Smith, Jean Wilt, Louise Booco, Erma Wilt, and Messrs. Keith Zimmerman, Marvin DeMent, David Bond and Lee Draper.

BEEF SLAUGHTER RULE IS REVISED BY GOVERNMENT

May Further Reduce Beef Supply to Civilians All Over Nation

Although it will affect no slaughter house in Fayette County, the beef "set-aside" order of the War Food Administration has been revised so that it may further reduce the amount of beef available to civilians during the war period.

The new order includes operations of all slaughtering plants where more than 51 head of cattle which produce "army style" beef are slaughtered weekly, effective December 4. The order is issued by E. O. Pollock, Midwest Regional Director of the Foods Distribution.

Heretofore, any number of persons were allowed to slaughter cattle at a plant and no set-aside was required so long as individual slaughterer did not exceed 51 head minimum.

Pollock explained that beginning December 4, set-aside order will apply to any slaughterer who has slaughtering done for him or who slaughters in a plant where weekly slaughter of cattle producing "army style" beef exceeds 51 head, and the slaughterer will be required to set-aside designated percentages of beef.

As a prerequisite to supplying beef for government purchase, WFA will require federal inspection in all such plants. This inspection, however, will be necessary only on beef required to be set aside. This means that any slaughtering plant where more than 51 cattle which will produce "army style" beef are slaughtered in a week, will be required to qualify for either limited or full federal inspection.

"Army style" beef is defined as "dressed steer carcasses weighing 400 to 1100 pounds, dressed heifer carcasses weighing 350 to 650 pounds, grading U. S. choice, good and commercial, and steer and heifer carcasses weighing 350 to 550 pounds, grading U. S. utility.

As amendment 16 to WFO No. 75-2, this action will require slaughterers affected to set aside for government purchase 60 percent of choice and good and 60 percent each of commercial and utility grades which meet army specifications. This action makes no change in set-aside percentages.

This action is intended to obtain a more equitable distribution of responsibility in furnishing beef for military use, Pollock stated.

PRESIDENT'S SON IS TO WED MOVIE ACTRESS WITHIN WEEK

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Faye Emerson, blonde movie actress, said today that she and Col. Elliott Roosevelt will be married within a week. Earlier, a spokesman for the President's son quoted Roosevelt as saying that he and Miss Emerson planned to be married.

Miss Emerson is 27 and has been previously married. She has a son four or five years old.

It will be Col. Roosevelt's third marriage. Five days after Elizabeth Donner Roosevelt obtained a divorce in Minden, Nev., in 1933 on her cross-complaint charging cruelty, he married Ruth Goggins.

She divorced him at Fort Worth, Tex., last April 18 after testifying that he had ceased to care for her and asked her to bring suit. She obtained custody of their three children.

Miss Emerson, born in Elizabeth, La., has been in pictures since 1941. She and Roosevelt met in a New York night club several months ago, friends say. Within the last few weeks, and previously, she has denied with some vigor that she intended to marry the President's son.

Roosevelt was commissioned a captain in the army air forces in 1940 and was made a full colonel in April of last year. He served in Africa and Sicily as commander of the Allied Photographic Service. He now is on leave.

Husking Bee

An old fashioned Husking Bee was enjoyed Saturday when relatives and friends assembled at the home of E. C. McVey, who has been ill for some time, to assist him in husking his corn. More than 100 shocks were husked by Clarence Day, Bert McVey, Earl Haines, H. W. McVey, Dalton McFadden, Frank McFadden and sons, Edgar and Robert and Thomas Bernard.

The wives of these men assisted Mrs. McVey in serving a most bountiful and delicious dinner.

57th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Custis celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary quietly at their home in Sabina, Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Custis was formerly Miss Florence Johnson, and they were married at the Johnson home by Rev. T. B. Graham. Three of the guests are still living, Mrs. Stella Ruble, Mr. James Custis and Mr. S. R. McGuire, who attended the wedding and reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Custis, although both are past the four score years, are enjoying very good health.

THE SERVANT OF THE PEOPLE

YOU HAVE never actually held "electrical power" in the palm of your hand... in fact you have never really seen or really felt by touch "electrical power."

AND YET you are aware of its presence, you know it is there because you daily see the wonders brought to you by the force of electricity. All the many time saving, labor saving, and money saving electrical servants about you in your home. Not to mention the constant and always present miracle of electric lighting.

ALL THIS is at your service, is the servant of the people. All this and more, for as soon as peace comes again new electrical wonders will be produced for your comfort and for your convenience.

ALL MADE possible by electrical power, manufactured and produced by electrical power and finally brought to your home by electrical power. Surely it is right to say... POWER, IS THE SERVANT of the PEOPLE.

WCH DOUGHBOY WRITES LETTER OF PHILOSOPHY

Foxhole Soliloquy Reveals Thoughts in Troubled Mind of Soldier

From S-Sgt. Charles E. Osborne, son of H. L. Osborne, 121 East Temple Street, comes this note, inspired by his own personal experience with Gen. Patton's Third Army in France.

Sgt. Osborne left Washington C. H., December 10, 1941, with the first group of men to be drafted after Pearl Harbor. He has been in England and France since April. Now a 26 year old infantryman, he was before the war associated with his father at the Washington Produce.

"Bear with me for a while and let me paint for you a picture of thought as it looms from the mind of our soldier friend. First, who is this soldier? He may be my son. He may be the lad who used to live next door. I wonder where he may be tonight? What dangers is he bearing? That is the question most all of us as parents, wives and friends, are wondering about constantly.

"As we join our friend he has just been aroused by a buddy sharing the same foxhole, to take over his shift of a two hour watch at their outpost. As our friend assumes his duty his troubled mind stands at a baffled condition. But he tries to satisfy his thoughts with his own humble interpretations. What is war? How fruitful are its results? What are its costs? He decides war is the result of a disillusioned thought put to use by a predominating power given to one or a small group of people.

"Next he compares the territorial gains of any previous conflict to the shrapnel-torn endures who escape holding on to life with a weakened grip, as well as those who lose the divine gift of life in such an unearthly struggle.

"He asks himself—how will the changes in me, brought about by such mental as well as physical strain, let me return to my standing of friendship or relationship which I was hard-pressed to leave?

"Will I be recognized as (example one)—he certainly isn't the fellow I knew. So rude, so abrupt and unconcerned. He has lost all he ever stood for back when I thought I knew him. Or will I be that of (example two)—well the army certainly made a man of him. He is so refined. His disposition so pleasant. He has learned to appreciate what little he may have. Or will I be that of (example three)—you couldn't change him in a million years. These are some of the thoughts our friend's mind is troubled with.

"As our sentry looks at his radiant dial watch, he finds that his two hours of duty have expired and it is time to awaken his buddy from a noticeably restless snooze to take his turn of guard. As our relieved faithful sentry descends to his rain moistened castle of blankets, he is consoled by the following thought:

"A soldier lives from day to day to pray that the condition of the whole world be taken back into the hands of Him who sits back and watches those whom He created make complete fools of themselves."

SHADE OF MODEL T!

Plane Propellers in Reverse To Act as Brakes

DAYTON, Nov. 30—(A)—Airplane propellers capable of reversing their thrust for use as brakes were disclosed today as an actuality by the AAF Air Technical Service Command at Wright Field, the AAF's gigantic aviation testing laboratory here.

A formal announcement speculated that they may be used in conjunction with takeoff rockets, "enabling giant airliners of the future to operate on regular schedule at airports which now hardly are of adequate size for emergencies."

Officials said a heavy ship using the new "prop" in conjunction with brakes halted in 900 feet, whereas 1500 feet were required with only brakes and flaps.

Chaplain Hill Honored

A get together of friends of Lester A. Hill, chaplain in the Navy and former pastor of the Congregational Church, was held Friday evening with a large crowd attending. A program was enjoyed by all and Mr. Hill gave a short talk concerning his work. Mr. Hill has been stationed in the Atlantic. Following is a song written, sung and dedicated to Mr. Hill by H. R. Murry.

There's a man with us tonight, we know;
He tries to do God's will.
A chaplain in the Navy;
His name is Lester Hill.
He'd give you his last cent, friends,
Pure gold his heart must be,
And we will all remember
When he sailed the war torn sea.

He left his home in Solon,
To help our boys out there;
We know that he will do his part
To lighten every care.

It takes a man with lots of love
For God and country, too,
To leave his home and family;
Help the boys to carry through.

And now before we leave tonight,
Let's show him we're still right.
We're buying bonds and working hard
To help them in this fight.

We do without the gasoline;
The bombers need to go
To bomb the Japs and German Saps
In Berlin and Tokyo.

Chorus:
He's a chaplain in the Navy.
He's a friend to one and all;
He'd gladly give his life for them;
He's at their beck and call.
And when the war is over,
Then we know he will feel free
To settle down and preach the word
In the land of liberty.

Jr. Class Play

The Junior Class of South Solon will present its play, "Here Comes Hattie" on this Thursday, November 30 at 8:00 P. M. The cast of the play is:

Clara Green, who manages the entire family ..... Patsy Past
Homer Greene, her husband who says nothing but thinks plenty ..... Bob Banion
Ann Green, their daughter ..... Martha Vallery
Thomas Greene, their son ..... Roger Knisley
William Billings, in love with Ann but afraid to say so ..... George Whalen
Florence Ryan, in love with Tom but too smart to marry in a hurry ..... Evelyn Gahn
Hattie King, a rich widow, Homer's sister ..... Betty Hill
Velda, Wayne, Hattie's mysterious secretary ..... Martha Spears
Etta Armstrong, the maid in the Greene Home ..... Jane O'Brien

The play takes place in the living room of the Greene home in the suburbs of a large city. The smoothly flowing lives of the Greene family are suddenly stirred violently when Aunt Hattie, Homer's wealthy sister, arrives for a visit. Complications arise when Hattie decides to prolong her visit. This is a clever comedy and one which everyone should enjoy.

Mrs. Damaris Boring is the director. Tickets may be bought from class members or at the door. No seats reserved.

Double Birthday Surprise

Mrs. Ada Rowand and Mrs. Geneva Simmermon were pleasantly surprised Tuesday when members of the Missionary Society met with Miss Anna Rowand for a pot-luck dinner. Birthday cakes baked by Mrs. Eva Shaeffer and Mrs. Elsie Murry graced the table. The honored guests received many nice gifts and cards. Those present were: Mrs. Flora Elliott, Mrs. Clara Theobald, Mrs. Stella Curry, chaplain; Mrs. Lester Hill, Mrs. Murry, Mrs. Shaeffer, Mrs. Elizabeth Teft, Mrs. Orpha Pleasant, Miss Anna Rowand, Misses Sarah and Marjib Bruce, C. C. Rowand, Keith Rowand and the honored guests.

Blue Star Mothers Meet

The November meeting of the Blue Star mothers met Tuesday evening with Mrs. Marie Daniels with fifteen members present. It was voted to pack and mail a Christmas box to Jackie Burman, a patient in Fletcher Hospital at Cambridge, Ohio. He is the only son of the Blue Star Mothers' group in a hospital in the states. Following the business meeting a pot luck supper was enjoyed by all.

Attend Eastern Star

Those from South Solon visiting the Eastern Star at Sedalia Monday evening were: Mrs. Helen Rehm, Mrs. Ada Rowand, Mrs. Dorothy Clemans, Mrs. Lillie Rowand, Mrs. Elizabeth Teft and Mary Ellen Baughn.

Chicken Supper Planned

The Loyal Circle Class of Congregational Church is planning a chicken supper to be held in the church basement Tuesday evening, December 5th.

WCS Meets

The WCS Society met last Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Thurman Spears.

New Martinsburg

Funeral services for Mrs. Ella Johnson were held Thursday at 2 P. M. at the M. E. Church. Rev. Frank Milner of Leesburg was in charge. A large number of relatives and friends were present to pay farewell tribute to Mrs. Johnson.

There were many lovely floral gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Jett, Noah Knisley, Irene Corzatt sang the three hymns "Rock of Ages," "Face to Face" and "Home of the Soul" with Miss Ola Knedler at the piano.

The pallbearers were the grandsons, Edwin, Howard, Jr., James, Robert, Marvin and Harold Johnson. Burial was made in the Cochran Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gear are the proud possessors of a leopard skin, sent them by their son, Arnold, who is stationed somewhere in Italy. His niece and nephew, Miss Marva and Tommy Gear, received pencil crayons from him also.

Mr. Howard Kerns is sick at this writing.

Mrs. George Clark is better at this writing.

Mrs. Corwin Beatty's grandmother and family of Coshocton County Mohawk village were visiting them over the week end.

Miss Evelyn Gahn was a Monday evening dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dement and daughter, Phyllis.

ROBOT BOMB WRECKS U. S. HOSPITAL IN BELGIUM

SOMEWHERE IN BELGIUM, Nov. 30—(A)—A German flying bomb struck and wrecked a U. S. Army hospital well behind the battle lines several days ago, killing 12 persons, injuring nearly 50 and forcing evacuation of the hospital's 1,150 patients, it was disclosed today.

Fifteen nurses were sent to a rest area suffering from shock.

KILLED BY TRAIN

CINCINNATI, Nov. 30—(A)—Caught between couplings of two passenger coaches, George Haney, 62, New York Central Railroad yard workers, was killed last night.

Buck Prospects For Next Year Bright Markets and Finance

By HAROLD HARRISON
COLUMBUS, Nov. 30.—(AP)—“What do you think the score will be Saturday?” has given “way to what will the Bucks have next year?” as the favorite question on Ohio State University’s football front.

API Women’s Bowling Race Tightened by Ninth Matches

The Gremlins held their lead in the API Women’s League after nine weeks of bowling, but the Bombers were right on their heels with the narrowest of gaps separating them after Wednesday night’s matches on the Main Street alleys.

The Gremlins were handed a two-out-of-three setback by the Helicopters while the Bombers were winning two out of three from the P-38s. The Helicopters won the first two games from the Gremlins by fairly comfortable margins before they hit a slump while the Gremlins were rolling their best game to win the final with the help of a juicy 179 by P. Walker.

The Bombers, starting out like a whirlwind, won the first two games from the P-38s before they weakened and were downed in the last one.

The third place Owls climbed right up into the thick of the scrap for top honors when they made a clean sweep of their match with the Flying Fortresses and the Gliders went into a tie.

—Spying— On Sports

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP)—

Ever hear of people who wanted to give away money? . . . That’s getting to be a hot subject in Minor League baseball and one which will be argued over again at next week’s Buffalo convention. . . . Last year the Southern Association asked that class A-1 leagues be allowed to pay bonuses to other than first-year players. . . . Leagues of lower classification asked to be declared in and the whole business was voted down. . . . This year the Southern is asking the right to pay bonuses for signing players coming out of the armed forces and the Atlanta Club proposes giving the player his choice between a cash bonus and ten percent of the price when he is sold into a higher class. . . . The same league wants to raise player limits right down the line so clubs can absorb returning service men without hardship.

Wisconsin’s Girard Most Impressive Of Foes Of Bucks

COLUMBUS, Nov. 30.—(AP)—

“Most valuable” player on football teams which met—and lost—to Ohio State University this year was Earl (Jug) Girard, freshman ace of the University of Wisconsin, the Buckeye coaching staff disclosed.

Girard’s passing, running and kicking was the most impressive shown by an opposing player during Ohio’s nine-victory season, despite Wisconsin’s 20 to 7 defeat. Joe Ponseto, Michigan quarterback, was runnerup, and Wayne (Red) Williams of Minnesota, third.

Football Revival Planned at Akron

AKRON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—The University of Akron will field a football team next year for the first time since 1941, Athletic Director Fred Sefton announced today.

Sefton said he would attempt to line up a schedule at the annual Ohio Conference meeting at Columbus this week end. Paul Baldacci will remain as head coach and an assistant will be named later, Sefton added.

That will leave as a nucleus from the first thirteen:

Fullback Ollie Cline who is 4F, tackles Russ Thomas (4F), and Ambling (2A), and guard Bill Hackett (2A).

In the backfield Widdoes now figures on having Matt Brown, John Ehrsam, Bob Dove, Jerry Tuttle and Joe Mascio. In addition, Paul Sarringhaus, a star of the 1942 team, has been discharged from the Army and says he’ll re-enter school. The question mark about Sarringhaus, however, is an injured ankle.

Brown, a veteran from 1943, saw considerable defensive action this year but Ehrsam, Dove and Tuttle were used sparingly.

Dick Jackson and Bobby Wallace, both 4F’s, figure to be back for end duty and Bob McGinnis also may return for tackle duty.

Paul Maltinsky and George Neff, 4F’s and veterans of two years, should be back to play guard and there will be Charles Renner, another 4F, for center. Renner saw a lot of service this year as replacement for Appleby.

Widdoes now is out beating a trail around the high school banquet circuit but it will be summer before he knows for sure just what he will have in the way of freshmen.

Rural Fire Protection Problem To Be Studied

TRUSTEES NAME COMMITTEE FOR INVESTIGATIONS

State President Speaks at Annual Banquet of Trustee Association

The possibilities of adequate fire protection for townships was the prime subject of discussion at the annual banquet of the Township Trustees and Clerks Association at the Country Club Wednesday night.

Joseph Thomas, president of the state association and main speaker at the meeting, declared a revision of the laws governing township fire departments was essential before adequate fire protection could be furnished. While the rural fire loss has been reduced 50 percent, Thomas said, "That is not enough. We must have protection for every home."

He recommended a law which would allow townships to purchase fire equipment, saying that such legislation already has "plenty of support."

Thomas also plugged appropriation of more money for the construction of permanent county roads. With 40 percent of the mileage in the state in township roads and 62 percent of the farmers living on township roads, Thomas said money was needed to surface the thoroughfares. He backed the return of the one cent gasoline tax for use of the roads.

"If we don't get it, we will have to go back to assessments," Thomas declared.

Equipment Available

Carl H. Roggenkamp, assistant state fire coordinator, told the group of civilian defense equipment which may be available to townships for fire protection. While the townships could only borrow the equipment, the boosters and pumps will stay in the state, Roggenkamp said. In recommending procedure to be followed in analyzing fire protection needs for the individual township, he recommended first determining the equipment available and whether or not the community in which it was situated had enough surplus to service its area, whether there are enough manpower available and how far away the equipment was situated.

Roggenkamp said 800 pumps with a 500 gallon per minute capacity, were available now. He suggested a volunteer department in the township or maintaining volunteer firemen at the central fire department as ways within the township's reach of providing fire protection. Roggenkamp also suggested an analysis of each township's problem by the fire chief.

George Hall, Washington C. H. fire chief, said the 500 gallon pump which is now in the fire department was not a complete fire fighting unit. He also explained that some parts of the county were 15.4 miles from the fire department, a distance too far for protection in any degree of efficiency.

While Hall pledged the support of the city council in any fire protection moves which might be made by the trustees association, he pointed out the undermanned city fire department plus the additional map of water available made it impossible for the fire department here to provide protection in addition to the vigilance necessary for the city.

Officers Re-elected

All officers of the association were re-elected for the coming year. They are: Ellsworth Vannorsdall, president; Warren Brannon, vice president and Edgar McFadden, secretary-treasurer.

MRS. ED KLEVER DIES THURSDAY

Had Spent Entire Life in Fayette County

Mrs. Ed Klever, aged resident of Bloomingburg, who had spent all of her life in Fayette County, died Thursday at 6:30 A.M. at her home.

Mrs. Klever, a woman of many fine qualities and beloved by all who knew her, had been in failing health for several years.

Her husband, nationally known as a breeder of Poland China swine, passed away in 1940.

She was the daughter of Augustus and Katherine Hess Parrett, coming from two of the old families of the county.

Until 30 years ago she resided on a farm near Yatesville, at that time moving to Bloomingburg where she had since resided.

Mrs. Klever was a member of the Presbyterian Church of Bloomingburg; member of the Literary Club of that place, and of the D. of A. in this city, and had long been active in all organizations.

Funeral services will be held at the Kiever Funeral Home, Saturday at 2 P.M. and burial made beside her late husband in the Bloomingburg cemetery. Rev. John Glenn will conduct the services.

Mrs. Bryant had spent her entire life in the New Holland community.

Surviving are one son and a daughter, Clark Bryant and Mrs. Ruth Garrison. Mrs. Bryant had made her home with her daughter for many years. Two grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 P.M. at the residence and burial will be made at New Holland under direction of the Kirkpatrick and Son Funeral Home.

NOW SHE SHOPS "CASH AND CARRY"

Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisons matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.
